Halloween in the Amherst Village

AMHERST - By all accounts, Halloween in the village was a howling, creepy, witchy success. Homeowners went all out decorating with gigantic spiders and oversized webs, fog, sound effects, music and great costumes. Creatively carved pumpkins and cutouts at windows set the mood for the dark night filled with ghosts and goblins around every corner and lined up on front walks to receive their treats. Even the Historical Society got into the act with the Wigwam Museum being open and a frightening Dracula type figure peering out at the trick or treaters from one of the life-sized dioramas. Really weird! Miss Jackie, children's librarian at the Amherst Town Library handed out candy dressed as Lilly in the children's book, Lilly's Purple Plastic Purse.

Mike's Auto was again a gathering spot for young and old as Pooh Bear and Tiger danced the night away with all partners willing to step forward.

Thanks to the homeowners for making Halloween a fun filled family night in the village and all around town.
