Actorsingers Set Sail For Romance, Hi-jinks On The High-seas, And Lots Of Family Fun With "Anything Goes"

NASHUA – Actorsingers, Nashua's longest-running musical theater group, now in its 55th season, is pleased to announce their fall show, Cole Porter's classic "Anything Goes." This beloved musical comedy is set in the 1930s and features such classic show tunes as "You're the Top," "De-Lovely" and "Let's Misbehave." Gangsters, star-crossed lovers and shipboard antics all add up to a wonderful night of theater.

This performance unites a "dream team" of NHTA-winning directors: Dana Bissett-Siegal as director, Jed Holland as music director, and Martha Daniels Holland as choreographer. Bissett-Siegal and Daniels Holland previously helmed the well-received "42nd Street" production in 2005.

The show itself is seemingly "transcending generations" for the organization. Having first performed it in 1969, then again in 1989, now in 2009, it's managed to bring back people involved in the previous productions, in one way or another, giving it a real "family" feel. Laura Prior, who's playing the role of "Hope Harcourt" is joined in this production by Catherine Z. Andruskevich, "Hope 1989". Cast in the ensemble this time around, as well as serving as Company Coordinator, Catherine says, "Hope was one of my favorite roles with Actorsingers. It's been a lot of fun reliving it throughout this production." Linnea McAllister, who was "Hope 1969", is a Life Member of the Actorsingers, and also the wife of John McAllister, 2009's Set Designer, a Life Member as well.

Choreographer Martha Daniels Holland also appeared in the 1989 production. Now she's part of the three-person directing team with her husband, musical director Jed Holland. "To me," she says, "it's really cool that I was on stage and Jed was in the orchestra 20 years ago, and now we're on the directing team for this production." And, she adds, with five kids, "Jed and I really look forward to rehearsals for some adult time!"

Dana Bissett-Siegal is working with her husband – Ed Siegal who won the role of Sir Evelyn. "It's been a great experience," Ed Siegal says, "because our relationship developed in community theater. I have such respect for her abilities as a director. We can totally separate our personal and theatrical lives."

Daniel Pelletier returns in this production as "the Bishop", a role he played in 1989. Donna O'Bryant Metzger, "Bonnie" in 1989, once again joins the passenger list, as does Mark Coutu, who's father Mo, was 1989's "Billy". Raelene Liljeberg and Warren Tomasian are back working Costumes, and Set Construction respectively, as they did in the 1969 production, and the list goes on, and on; a tribute to the Actorsingers' ever-expanding, and continuing family.

"Anything Goes" runs Friday, November 13, through Sunday, November 15, at the Keefe Auditorium, Elm Street Middle School, Nashua. Tickets are $18, call 320-1870 or go to www.actorsingers.org.
