Neukam Honored at the University of New England

Suvi Neukam, a first year medical student in osteopathy at the University of New England, Biddeford, ME, was awarded first place in the 2011 Humanism in Aging Leadership program. The Award winners were selected by the 2011 UNECOM Humanism in Aging Leadership Award Committee, headed by Rosanne Leipzig, MD, Ph.D., Professor Geriatrics and Palliative Medicine, Mount Sinai School of Medicine. Winners selected for their academic submission expressing their future practice ideals regarding the humanistic and "whole person" approach they would like to put into action to promote optimal aging for older adults and their caregivers. An award luncheon, held on April 26, 2011, included a presentation by each student to UNECOM classmates and faculty.
