Lutheran Social Services Names New Leader

CONCORD - Angela Wallingford Bovill, 39, has been named president and CEO of Lutheran Social Services of New England (LSS). She succeeds David Forsberg, who has served as the interim president/CEO since May 2012.

Forsberg will continue as a senior advisor and government relations consultant for the agency.

Bovill joined LSS in 2008 as chief financial officer. She was named chief operating officer in 2011.

David Forsberg, former president of the Worcester Business Development Corporation, said, "When I agreed to become the interim CEO, I had no idea how long I'd occupy that position. But it quickly became evident that in our chief operating officer we already had the right person on board.

"Angela possesses the perfect combination of passion and professionalism to build on LSS' 140-year record of service. She is a wonderful choice to lead the agency into the future."

Jeffrey Kinney, chair of the LSS board of directors, stated, "Angela Bovill is a highly innovative thinker in the human service field, is passionate about our mission and is skilled in all areas of operations. The agency will be in great hands with her as its leader."

Bovill stated, "I want to create real impact for the individuals and communities we serve. I look forward to building new relationships within those communities to solve some of the complex issues we face. We and our community partners can work together to make our communities better places for everyone."

Ann Dancy is vice president for agency operations in New Hampshire, where LSS administers several human service programs, including In-Home Care, Services for New Americans, the Language Bank, Therapeutic Family Connections, Good News Garage, Disability Services and the Health Profession Opportunity Program (HPOP).

We hope to provide a space that welcomes both the spiritual seeker and the seasoned disciple so that people from many starting points can find their home in God with us. If you are seeking a spiritual home or are just exploring the life of faith, we hope you will walk with us on that journey of discovery.
