Vote for Change

To the editor:

With all the negative advertising barraging the airways about the various candidates, it can sometimes be difficult to determine the truth. Negative advertising is often misleading or even dishonest and can confuse voters about the various issues. I suggest an easier way to make your decisions on November 4th. Ask yourself these three simple questions before voting.

1. Is our country safer now than it was six years ago?

2. Are my friends, and family better off financially now than they were six years ago?

3. Am I more satisfied with my health care now than I was six years ago?

If you honestly answered no to any or all of the above questions, you need to vote for a change in the “status quo”.

Run, Run, But Can’t Hide

To the editor:

Run Annie and Jeanne, but you can’t hide.....This week the president said: “Democrats running for office this year are all folks who vote with me. They have supported my agenda in Congress.” They’re hiding from him now but if reelected will go back to voting with him and his failed policies that have brought terrorism to a new level and a sputtering economy here at home. Yes, “his policies are on the ballot” as he again stated. We need to vote out the Democrats and therefore stop this president with his bewildered-bystander pose that has increased a sense of growing disorder among Americans. What is happening to this great country?
